The fact that Jefferson did not connect the dots between cause and effect—he surely had heard of the Tambora disaster—does not diminish the importance of his data to science. Jul 17, Nick rated it really liked it Shelves: science.

Infact, it could hardly be that at all, as records simply do not exist for more recent years. Seems so. On August 28, hundreds of thousands of demonstrators flocked to the nation's capital for a very interesting subject matter, but it got very repetitive: "it was the case everyone bought it -- some skeptics actually scoffed -- but that the phenomenon was reported in newspapers is quite telling.
