It serves as a way to support the portfolio optimization and authorization processes and enables the easy comparison of benefits to one another if carefully selected and consistently applied criteria are used. The evaluation further can reward someone if he or she feels his or her work is not in synch with the organization's strategic goals and objectives and points it out to senior leaders.

Some project managers choose to turn this information into a timeline or a bar chart. Moreover, IT should not be viewed and managed as an island, but rather be seen as an integral part of organizational life. We need to enable better sharing of knowledge and experience. Benefits Realization from Information Technology by C. The benefit champion can reside in either organization, but ideally in the PfMO since it works with executives to select programs and projects to pursue, prioritize them, and terminate ones that no longer support strategic objectives.
