Weshallnowcommenceanoperationwithachargeforwhatis called. As an antacid, it is useful in strong solution, in cases of poisoning by mineral acids and also in acid conditions of the stomach. Commercial lyes can be bought in tins from pharmacies in larger towns, and these are a standard strength to give consistent results. The others are used in making soap. The application of pressure forces is even preventative of lather in the case of the product of the invention. In this connection it should be mentioned that there has been no lack of attempts to increase the lathering of bars of soap with other means than netlike articles, namely with such which are based on the known lather-producing effect of sponges.
